THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE EMPRESS CHARLOTTE, THE LAST DAUGHTER OF HENRI IV.

A celebrated painter has asserted, that when sketching the portrait of a woman, he was never able to divest himself of a secret apprehension which always induced a certain hesitation of the pencil in his fingers. The analysis of a man, he said, is a combat of equal strength between the artist and his subject. However high in rank the sitter may have attained by chance, intelligence or contingencies, all prestige vanishes at the moment in which he places himself before the painter; he is no longer even the equal of the artist, who studies him with the eye as the physician auscultates him by the wrist.

With a woman, on the contrary, however low her position in the world, there is nothing of the sort. A woman she will always be, even under the searching scrutiny of the artist, who, above all others, knows well that she will never allow herself to be surprised; at the best, one can only divine her.

If, then, the most skilful pencil hesitates in pourtraying a woman, be she most indifferent, with how much greater reason must my feeble pen tremble, as it essays to sketch the portrait of one of the most noted and prominent women of the day, the Empress Charlotte, of Mexico!

The quite exceptional life of this lady, who has always nearly touched a certain point, but whose authority has never been absolutely established, is, from her first breath, worthy of remark.

This princess, entirely French, as Jules Janin asserts, saw the light in 1840, not in France, but in a little neighboring country created by France, which sought to resemble her protector, and in which now—thirty years later—she has scarcely succeeded.

Grand daughter of Henri IV—the great King of France, the intellectual witty Bearnese, the celebrated devotee to fair women, the husband of Queen Margot, whose secret Memoirs are so well known—she was born in Belgium, of a French Princess, who only read her missal, and a German who had been a Russian General, and widower of an English Queen, previous to finding a place as King of the Belgians, which position permitted him to wed the daughter of a parvenu, himself the son of a Convention. The Princess was born, then, upon the French frontier, at least fifteen leagues distant, at Brussels, and whatever the eminent critic, Jules Janin, may think, she never, in all her journeys, passed more than six months in France. If for this she is French, it can only be very nearly so.

Her childhood was sad, as was the life of all the children of King Leopold, that happy egotist, who made those nearest him wait in vain for that with which, two steps from the palace where his family vegetated, he enriched others. The little girl and her two elder brothers were often met, accompanied by a tutor and governess, and were seen in hours of recreation walking in the park of Brussels. The girl was charming, and always simply dressed, wearing a great straw hat, beneath which her hair was plainly plaited on either side, with a short dress and white pantalettes. Her portrait was taken at that period, and is now in the private apartment of the palace at Brussels. The princess held in her hand a hoop, that she always carried, but never trundled. Involuntarily one experienced a tightening about the heart at the sight of those three children, with their wearied look, who walked so gravely, never once stopping or running. Occasionally the great black eye of the youngest rested on groups of children beyond, whose sports and joyous shouts reached her. She who would have so liked to play and run with them! But that was only for a moment; soon all three were recognized, the children ceased their games, and, ranging themselves in silence, the larger ones respectfully uncovered to the august trio.

At the palace, life was hardly more gay. The child kept near her mother who only taught her to pray. The days of public reception alone and rarely interrupted this heavy monotony; those days on which, instead of acts of contrition, the royal child took lessons in etiquette, and in this manner: The princess was at the side of her mother, the guests bowing in succession before them, the Queen returning bow for bow, her curtsey being more or less low, according to the importance of the person so distinguished, and this was important to teach the child, as it must never happen that she should salute a first president, as if he were a brewer, or bestow on a notary the curtsey due an Ambassador. The Queen held her daughter by the hand, and when the child had made a sufficiently low inclination, a tight pressure of the fingers warned her; and the princess then straightened herself stiffly, to salute in her turn, and according to the hint of her mother, the person who followed.

The child never had a friend of her own age. She saw around her only the ladies of honor chosen by the King for the Queen, all of whom were old, who talked only of religion, and respectfully performed their duties in waiting near the princess, like nuns at the feet of a paste board Virgin of a Church. The little girl knew nothing beyond, and all was as it should be, for her mother was so good! But one day, after a long illness, this Queen died, and the Princess, then eleven years old, remained entirely alone; alone in the midst of these ancient ladies of honor whom the King kept about her, and among whom the child could be about as happy as a lark in a nest of buzzards.

This new period lasted for two years.—The poor bird only asked, perhaps, to warble; at thirteen years of age, young girls are prattlers, but they are only so with each other; and should not companions have been given to that young creature who pined in solitude, and whose heart was warmed by no friendly soul? This was never thought of; for her father, in whose presence she trembled, was occupied with other affairs. The Princess became consequently more and more reserved and self contained, her precocious character being warped and embittered by this icy surrounding, whose sad influences affected her to the point of incrusting and hardening her acquired defects. It was then that the marriage of her brother seated at their family table an Austrian Princess, who, as future Queen, took the seat of honor.

The Princess Charlotte now passed to the second rank. Her self-love was wounded; her disposition, from being surrounded by these old ladies who only spoke to her with profound respect, and always with a deep curtsey, had become haughty to excess, and it was with a bad grace that she bowed before the new-comer, whom she did not know, and who, from the morrow, assumed the first place. And this sister, even, whom they had given her, could be no friend.—Friendship between women, these beings with delicate impressions and changeable feelings, is a continual exchange of confidences, which cannot exist between a woman and a young girl, and this stranger was seventeen, while the Princess was only thirteen. Never, moreover, were two natures more dissimilar seen side by side; the one being fine, delicate, severe and reserved, the other, the present Queen of the Belgians, full and stout in figure, lively, fearless, and at the slightest pretext laughing without restraint in the face of the first comer. This new Princess, besides, was possessed of a most absorbing passion, which even now, Queen and mother of three children as she is, continues in full force; she is a horse-woman, a sportsman, who adores her horses, passing long hours among them, they playing freely around her. She calls them, talks to them, pursues and brings them back, caresses, or chastises them with a very solid riding whip, that she carries always in her hand, as other women do a scent bottle or fan.

Alone, always alone, the princess grew up. She attended the balls given four times during the winter, by the King; but alone of blood royal, she could not dance; etiquette forbade her being encircled by the arms of a waltzer; and it was only occasionally, and with one of her brothers she took part in a grave quadrille. She looked on at the gay whirl of others; her eye was sad, and she surveyed with cold indifference that turbulent joy, in the midst of which she showed only a silent and haughty ennui. The education of the old ladies had borne sure fruit.

One could examine her then at ease.—She was sixteen years of age, large and much as she was seen some months ago; tall, elegant and slender in figure, with a refined mouth, an aquiline and somewhat long nose, her abundant and rich chesnut hair in plain bands, her face of a perfect oval, the complexion variable and easily blushing, and a most modest deportment. Never, now as then, seeing her pass slowly with her head slightly bent, so that her eyes must be raised to find those of her interlocutor, whom she thus seems to examine askance—never, with this reserved bearing, would one suspect the feelings burning within. It might be said of her, she has a fine beautiful nature, simple and gentle, formed to lean on others, and to lose her support, but one would never say, this is an Empress!

Her marriage was announced. She was just seventeen, when, one day in August, in bridal costume, in the presence of a dense crowd, she showed herself on the balcony of the palace at Brussels, leaning on the arm of a fair young man with prominent teeth, who wore an Admiral's uniform. It was the Austrian Governor of Italy, the Archduke Maximilian, brother of the Emperor of Austria, the future Emperor of Mexico.

In this first part of the life of the Empress Charlotte, will be seen, perhaps, only the history of every young girl reared without a mother, without a friend, and who has grown up in the midst of ennui, a case by no means rare; but generally, marriage, that delivers them from bondage, and which, without exception, girls love for its own sake,—marriage effaces all the sad past. It may be so with any other, but not with the daughter of the King of the Belgians. By the side of this young girl had grown a Princess, and the Princess had out grown the child. It would have been far different, blessed by a mother's smiles; and the great simplicity of nature characterising the one too soon snatched away from the Princess Charlotte, would have been the noblest appanage of this royal child. If she had more often heard herself called "my daughter," by beloved lips, than "Princess," by indifferent voices, she might perchance have forgotten this title, the only one to which she had ever replied. She was not, then, like other women with whom, above all things, marriage brings the wish for children. No! besides, her marriage had been such as it always is in royal families, the union of two persons who hardly knew each other; and thus the Archduke Maximilian married a Princess who, before wishing for a family, desired an Empire.

Nevertheless, she might still have been happy. If capricious Providence had granted a child to one who had never known family joys, would she not have resigned all for this little being? Would she not have hidden herself in privacy, drawing her husband far away from that life of feverish and constantly renewed emotions? Would she not have loved much better this chateau of Miramar, which she always detested as the witness of her devouring ennui, if, in its limited park—which, nevertheless, she found too large, because at each step she met only insupportable weariness,—she had seen two or three rosy children romping in merry sport and games! But this happiness was not for her. There are natures which seem to be predestined, and she was fated to show to the bitter end, the effect of the absence of family ties upon a woman, whom the chances of birth had crowned with every gift. She arrived at Milan, her whole life changed. She found herself the wife of a brave, intelligent man, of a liberal, unthinking artistic nature; she was her own mistress, for her husband was so good and kindly considerate towards her, as to exert every effort to bear alone the chain which united him to his companion, the weight of which she never felt.

The Princess might have fancied herself an absolute sovereign, and in truth she so believed until the Emperor of Austria, in 1859, dismissed his brother from the Viceroyalty, when he retired to Miramar. It was there that she aided in the great Italian drama; there that each day she received news of the queen of Naples, who resisted as she herself would have liked to resist, and who saw cannon balls whistle around her, while the Archduchess only saw the blank, infinite void stretching beyond the Adriatic.

She would have resisted, but it was not in her power; her husband was no longer master. He was only in the back ground, as she herself had always been in Belgium.

At length, one day she was radiant; the imperial flag of Mexico floated to the breeze. She was Empress. She had accepted with joy. Thus she departed.

Now, in this same chateau of Miramar, at the foot of which the blue waves break, listening to the wailing winter winds, lies a poor invalid who suffers, who is hungry, and refuses all nourishment. She is the last grand daughter of Henri IV. Formerly, there was also another, whose husband was likewise far away, who suffered hunger in a palace, the Louvre; it was Henrietta, of England, daughter of Louis XIII, the first grand daughter of Henri IV, as the Empress Charlotte is the last. Strange conjunction!

In a few days, perhaps, she will be dead; she towards whom nature had shown itself so prodigal. She was beautiful, intelligent, and the daughter of a King; she was beloved, she was rich.

What, then, did she need?

Two things which, in absorbing her heart, would have checked and quieted her distempered mind; two things that would have made her a happy woman, and nothing more—a mother when she was a child, and a child when she became a woman.

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED

AT THE WONDERFUL REVELATIONS

MADE BY THE GREAT ASTROLOGIST,

Madame H. A. PERRIGO.

She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—she makes clear, that overcomes or predominate in the configuration—from the aspects and positions of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest Astrologist on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information, $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a lock of hair.

REPORT OF THE PROGRESS OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF NORTH CAROLINA, 1866, BY PROF. W. C. KERR, STATE GEOLOGIST.

It has been our purpose for some months past, defeated from time to time by other engagements, to notice at some length this valuable document, submitted, through his Excellency, the Governor, to the last Legislature, and ordered to be printed by that body. We regret, even now, that we have not the leisure or opportunity to give it that attention which its material importance and intrinsic merits demand. It is, in one sense, Prof. Kerr's professional imprimatur, and it is a source of congratulation that the first public impression is so satisfactory within itself and so creditable to the author. The arrangement of the publication is systematic and clear; the style simple and expressive; the leading facts and deductions concisely and perspicuously grouped, and the details as free, as the technology of the science will possibly allow, from unpronounceable names and jaw breaking derivatives. The report is a flattering harbinger of future efficiency and usefulness in Prof. Kerr's important field of labor.

The interesting fact is stated, in the preface, that the first suggestion of a geological survey of the State, was made by Prof. Olmsted, of the University, in 1821. In 1823, the General Assembly authorized a survey, and and appropriated, for the purpose, $250 for six successive years. This survey was partially executed by Prof. Olmsted, and continued by Prof. Mitchell, and was confined to the Eastern part of the State. Dr. Mitchell, on his own account, and animated by that love of science and active spirit of inquiry which so eminently distinguished him, made at subsequent periods extensive explorations, and published some valuable speculations,—many of which have been confirmed by subsequent experience or investigation, and stand as monuments to his diligent industry, skill and research.

At the session of 1851-2, the existing law on the subject was enacted. Dr. Emmons received the appointment of State Geologist in 1852, and retained the office until his death in 1863,—giving, in the interim, the results of his labors in five voluminous and able reports, which threw a flood of light upon the varied, wonderful and available resources of the State. Prof. Kerr was appointed in 1864, and the work before us is the admirable compendium of his investigations from that time up to the period of its preparation.

Chap. I is introductory, and devoted to an accurate and succinct explanation of the object and method of the survey.

Chap. II. embraces an outline of the Geology of Western North Carolina,—the territory explored comprising the eleven counties west of the Blue Ridge and Yellow Mountains, extending from Mitchell to Cherokee, and containing an area of some 4,000 square miles. A comprehensive description is given of the strike of the strata of this region, their dip, the drift, surfaces, and the [illegible] and age of the rocks. And in this latter connection, we cannot forbear from making a remarkable [illegible] deducing, from various postulates, the [illegible], amounting to conviction, that the rocks of this section belong to the most ancient of the azoic series, or that series destitute of any vestige of organic life, the Geologist says:

"And not only do they belong to the lowest geological horizon, but the entire absence of all representatives of the later formations makes it further necessary to conclude that we have here an extensive tract of the oldest land on the globe; and as North America is the eldest born of the continents, so the Black mountain is the eldest of its giant brotherhood, and was the first to emerge from the face of the unbroken sphere of waters, when the command went forth, 'Let the dry land appear.'"

This is an imposing fact, and suggestive of the most interesting associations and reflections. It is well known, by the way, that all that was mortal of Dr. Mitchell, who died a martyr to science, reposes on the topmost peak of this mountain,—a peak, the actual height of which was first discovered and ascertained by himself, and named, accordingly and properly, after him. What man that ever lived, save the great Lawgiver of the Jews, who received his sepulture at the hands of the Almighty, on Mt. Nebo, has a grander resting place? Newton or Wellington, though they sleep in the venerable Abbey which is older than William the Conqueror, have no such mausoleum. It were folly to place a monument on such a spot. In the enunciation of his opinion, sustained as it is by the most reliable and approved scientific data, Mr. Kerr has invested the burial-place of the venerable and distinguished Professor with a grand historic charm, that mocks the fleeting memorials of human invention.

The same chapter (II) gives a full and interesting account of the economical geology of the region in question,—the limestone, marble, iron, gold and copper,—and also of its agricultural features, timber and products. We confess to some surprise at seeing it stated that tobacco flourishes remarkably well in the wild Cherokee country. The Professor mentions the further fact that a sum exceeding $100,000 is annually put in circulation in the mountains, in payment for indigenous medicinal roots, which are gathered chiefly in the rich coves and on the highest ridges. The loftiest mountain summits, ridges and plateaus are also natural meadows; good summer range is abundant everywhere, and there are large tracts, on the higher table-lands, where are several species of grasses which remain green through the winter—affording the finest opportunities for cattle and sheep-raising.

The concluding chapter (III) embraces a summary of the minerals of North Carolina,—particularly mentioned being the coal of Deep and Dan Rivers, interstratified there and elsewhere with fire-clay and impregnated with organic products; the limestone of the western counties and of McDowell, Gaston, Lincoln, Catawba and Wake; porcelain clay in Cherokee, Montgomery and Chatham; graphite or plumbago in Wake, Montgomery, Jackson and Macon; alum and copperas in Cleaveland and Rutherford; marl, iron, gold, silver, lead, zinc, copper, tungsten and diamonds. The gold mines are pronounced to be of the same character with those of California and Colorado, and the opinion of Overman, in his work on Metallurgy, quoted to the effect that, under proper management, they would be more profitable than those of the former country. Prof. Kerr sums up his condensed statement of our mineral resources with the following observation, which has all the weight of authority, and is capable, we are sure, of ample demonstration by experiment:

"Taking, then, in one view, our resources of iron, coal, and lime, of gold and copper, and the great variety of other minerals of subordinate but real and increasing value, it is sufficiently apparent that our State has here the foundation of indefinite wealth and prosperity; and that there is wanting to these ends only a vigorous prosecution of our system of internal improvements on the part of our Legislature, and intelligence, industry and enterprise on that of our citizens."

Let us hope that when a brighter political era shall dawn upon us,—when our national troubles shall be composed, and our people shall feel, under a just and stable government, the propulsions to industry and enterprise that can only be born of hope and security as to the future,—that they will work with a will to make available the elements of "wealth and prosperity," so lavishly displayed within our nature-favored borders, and so graphically described by the State Geologist. Meanwhile, we hope that Prof. Kerr will be stimulated by an enlightened legislation to continue the prosecution of his intelligent and valuable labors.

THE RADICAL POLICY.

We observe that the Washington Chronicle adopts the proposition of the Radical sheets in this State, and urges upon the Congress, when it meets, to cut short all possible barriers to the success of Radicalism in the South, by abolishing the existing civil State governments. The Chronicle says that Congress has the undoubted right to do this. Its power will not be questioned; but the right is doubted, and ever will be.

The Chronicle, however, thinks this course necessary to secure fairness in taking the sense of the people in the matter of the State Conventions. The intimation that the State governments have been disposed to obstruct the work of reconstruction, is false. We are sure that Gov. Worth has readily co-operated with Gen. Sickles in complying with all his demands, and that the same course has been cheerfully followed by all the officers of the State. The present State governments do not stand in the way of the District Commanders, or any one else. They may be used as helps, if the Commanders so desire. But the malice and greed of so-called Southern Loyalists will never be gratified till they are set aside. If this be done, the necessity for the continuance of military rule indefinitely, in the South, will be evident, because of the utter ruin of the South to admit white and black government at all. Chaos and anarchy reign in a great measure in Tennessee, and, under the same kind of management, the same would be the case in the other States.

THE READER will find the political doctrines foisted into Judge Chase's recent opinion most effectually exposed and refuted in the article from the Richmond Enquirer, over the signature of "Legiste," which we publish to-day.

THE REPORTS concerning Maximilian continue very conflicting. It is not known whether he has been pardoned or shot.

JOKE OR NOJOQUE.—Helper, the author of "The Impending Crisis"—which led to such an exciting debate at the commencement of the Thirty-sixth Congress, and was very influential in precipitating the crash of the Union—has just published a new book, which is so diverse to his previous work, that, probably to disabuse the public mind from any belief that it is a joke, he has given it the peculiar title of "Nojoque."—In this new effusion, Helper appears to have found it difficult to obtain words strong enough to express his abhorrence of the Negro and of Negro Worshippers. He calls the one a "base-born and ill-bred blackamoor," who "does not know, and can not know, how to vote intelligently," and the other "half witted and demagogical" legislators, who waste their time in attempting to prove the equality of the negro, and in the drafting of absurd laws for his recognition in good faith as a citizen of the United States," and who, he considers, "might, with equal propriety, busy themselves with the ridiculous irrationality of framing codes for allowing the gorilla and the chimpanzee to attend common schools, and for the baboon and orang-outang to testify in courts of equity!" The book is sadly disfigured with a strong current of Billingsgate, which runs through it, but this is evidently attributable to the school in which the author was educated. Mr. Helper should have left foul language with his former colleagues, to whom it properly belongs. Nevertheless, the Negrophilists, who, eight years ago, patted the author so pleasantly on the back, must be terribly galled at the manner at which he has now turned against them; they will most undoubtedly consider that "Nojoque" is anything but a joke for them.—New York News.

Advices from Mexico city to the 2d inst. state that Diaz expected to be in the capital within a week. From San Luis the dates are to the 11th. The trial of Maximilian was to commence immediately. All the foreign ministers are expected at Queretaro to use their influence towards saving him.

PRACTICAL AMALGAMATION IN NORTH CAROLINA, THE LEGITIMATE FRUIT OF THE RADICAL MOVEMENT—MARRIAGE EXTRAORDINARY!

We copy the following from the last Fayetteville News:

"We have no words to express our indignation and abhorrence at an event which has recently occurred in this town—the marriage of a white man with a black woman, on the night of Thursday, 20th inst. This is one of the revolting acts committed at times to shock and paralyse a whole community and astound men with the development of the occasional unnatural and monstrous degradation of human nature. In consideration of the feelings of the esteemed relatives of this man, we suppress his name, and only regret that there are those who bear it in common with him, who must be deeply wounded and outraged by his conduct. Let him, as the only atonement he can now make for the wrong done his family, take himself and all that can remind people of him, from our midst; let him hide his wretched face in shame, and pass his stained life in vain regret; let him deny himself any interest in the ties of his own flesh and blood; let him crush out from his heart every remembrance of those affections he has lost, and drink to the last bitter drop the cup which his own hand has prepared. May the measure be full to overflowing with its own unendurable punishment!

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to those whom he has so deeply distressed."

We differ, somewhat, from our respected cotemporary. It may be kind, in mercy to respectable friends, to withhold the names of persons who outrage public sentiment, yet if the interests of society demand the exposure, the few who are interested ought not to complain. The indignation expressed by the News is universal in that community, and will be felt everywhere, yet, when all the facts are known, the indignation will not all be expended on the simple fact that this white man has publicly married this colored woman.

The white man, alluded to above, we understand, is A. G. Thornton, of Fayetteville, a man who has been living there for some years, though not a native, who has made some money by store-keeping, but who, we learn, has not been received as an equal into repectable society there. The name of the colored woman we have not learned; if we knew it, we would publish it, for the reason, that, however mortifying to the respectable connexions of the vicious parties it may be, yet sound morals demand that public condemnation for evil acts should always be converged upon the guilty heads alone, and the public should not be left by chance to fix them upon innocent parties.—The outrage is against the laws of the State and the social rules of society. It is rumored that Gen. Sickels was induced to make a special order in this case and that they were married by a colored preacher. If rumor be true the facts we presume, led Gen. Sickels to make it, and we are rather disposed to think that Thornton did right in marrying her, under the circumstances, and all such white men should follow suit. It is the surroundings that make the affair infamous.

It will be remembered that this man, A. G. Thornton, was recommended by the Radicals of Fayetteville to the last Legislature, as a fit man to be appointed a Justice of the Peace. The worthy representatives of Cumberland scouted such an idea. The Radicals and "red strings" made a terrible howl over it. They charged that Thornton was rejected, because he was a Radical or a "red string." That might be [illegible] sufficient cause, but the [illegible] higher motives.—Cumberland acted [illegible] moral character of What was then [illegible] Were there no illicit affiliations then with this colored woman? Was [illegible] just cause for refusing to make him a magistrate? We think it was, and we justified the course of the excellent delegation from Cumberland.

But Thornton is understood to be an endorser of the mongrel Convention which was held in this city on March 27th. last.—We opposed that Convention, not only on account of its political design, but especially because of its vicious social and moral influence. We saw readily that its outcropping, if Radical ideas prevailed, would result in the amalgamation of the two races. We knew that all honest and respectable white and colored people were opposed to this. We knew that every respectable colored man and woman in the State were not only opposed to amalgamation, but, since they are free, were anxious to test fully the capacity of the black race, free from all mixture, for elevation in the scale of manhood and for self-government. We believed that desire and purpose was a good and legitimate one, and we are anxious to encourage them in it. Thornton's marriage is only the beginning of this outcropping of Radical amalgamation and miscegenation. As a good Radical, he was bound to marry the woman, if she was as black as the ace of spades, if his affiliations with her had been hitherto evil and unlawful. He is now a consistent Radical, and all of his confreres in the State, "who are tarred with the same stick," ought to go and do likewise, and that speedily. Moreover, it is important that the social and moral status of every man and woman, black or white, should be fixed. Thornton's is now fixed, however difficult it was to do it before.

Ex-Governor Wells having waited sufficient time for the President to decide on his removal, and the latter not having acted in the matter, has determined upon issuing a proclamation declaring himself still Governor, and Governor Flanders an usurper; declaring null and void his subsequent and future acts, and directing the sheriffs and other civil officers not to obey his orders. This he believes to be the law under the Attorney General's opinion. This will compel the President to act. He takes this course by advice of several lawyers here. His proclamation will be issued in a day or two, unless the President interferes.—N. O. Cor. N. Y. Herald.

Victor Hugo has just addressed a powerful appeal to President Juarez, of Mexico, invoking him to spare the life of the ex-Emperor Maximilian, asserting that the most suitable punishment of the foreign potentate will be that of living by the mercy of the republic.

Hartford has two hundred and fifty-three places where you can take something, and Connecticut has a prohibitory law.

From the Richmond Enquirer.

Lord Bacon uses the word "popular" in the sense in which we would say "political," when he says "a popular judge is a deformed thing;" and surely few spectacles offend the moral sense more than that of a Judge on the bench, capable of better things, catering to the passions of the multitude for an object palpably selfish, sinister, and, therefore, corrupt. Had it been even rationally connected with the case before him, to repeat the senseless chatter about "treason and "rebellion," to which no amount of parrot repetition can give the sound of respectable nonsense, this Judge, of all men, should have been the last to indulge in it. His own previous professions, seriously and officially made, ought to have sealed his lips. But the offence was monstrous when we reflect that the Judge, of necessity, knew that the question before him rested on no such ground as that of supposed treason, committed by millions of people, under an organized government, whose belligerent rights were acknowledged by all the world, waging war against other millions—a war national in its proportions and objects. He knew that the question before him depended upon a principle simple in itself, and familiar to the tyro not out of his horn-book. The restoration of the government, whose authority had been displaced by a de facto government, necessarily involved the power to destroy rights created by the de facto government in its efforts to preserve itself.—This consequence is essential to the full restoration of the authority of the former government. Among such rights were those growing out of the confiscation laws of the Confederate States. The United States, at the restoration, might affirm or abrogate such rights at its plezsure. When, says Wheaton in his "Elements of National Law," "a revolution in the government of the State is followed by a restoration of the ancient order of things, both public and private property, not actually confiscated, revert to the original proprietor on the restoration of the legitimate government; as in the case of conquest they revert to the former owners on the evacuation of the territory occupied by the public enemy."—"Private property, temporarily sequestered, returns to the former owner, as in the case of such property re-captured from an enemy in time of war." Where, however, public or private property has been not merely sequestered but confiscated and alienated, "such alienation to the subjects of the State may be annulled or confirmed as to their internal effects, as the will of the restored legitimate sovereign, guided by such motives of policy as may influence his counsels, may decide, reserving the legal rights of bonæ fidei purchasers under such alienations to be indemnified for ameliorations."

These were the simple elements of the question; but these did not suit our "popular" Chief Justice. He experiences none of Mr. Burke's difficulty in "drawing an indictment for treason against a whole people."—He even affects to think that although belligerent rights, (that is the right to make war,) were conceded by his government to the Confederate government, yet that was only for the convenience of the former while the war lasted; and that as soon as it is ended, that which was conceded to be a right, suddenly became a wrong; and the prisoner of war of yesterday becomes the traitor of to-day, and may be proceeded against for his crimes. Proh pudor! Of a kindred sort is that atrocious sophism of his yoke-fellow, Stevens, that the Southern States in their unavailing effort to throw off their connection with the Union, incited waged a war whose proportions of war, them, as all conceded, to the [illegible] conquered by their failure became the conqueror,—territories, at the mere means intended and in other words the Constitution have by used to pass destroyed it!

[illegible] is no plainer page in the common law than that which fixes the legal status of those who, having obeyed a de facto government, sovereign in its capacities and functions, afterwards come under the restored authority of that which had been displaced,—that status being one of entire innocence. Nor will it be denied that the idea of treason, as defined by the Constitution, is in all its relations not modified by that instrument, derived from that law.—There were three memorable occasions in English history which called for the assertion of this principle: When the bloody wars of the Roses terminated in the accession of Henry VII, by his uniting in himself both disputed titles to the crown; when the Stuart authority was displaced by the successful usurpation of Cromwell; and when the Stuarts, after the restoration, were again superseded by the House of Hanover. In treating of the first and last of these occasions, Mr. Justice Foster, criticizing some jure divino expressions of Lord Hale, and tracing the vulgar and bloody doctrine of Chase to the divine right of kings, says in his fourth discourse: "His Lordship admits that a temporary allegiance was due to Henry VI., as being king de facto. If this be true, as it undoubtedly is, with what color of law can those who paid him that allegiance before the accession of Edward the IV., be considered as traitors? For call it a temporary allegiance, or by whatever epithet of diminution you please, still it was due to him while in full possession of the crown, and consequently those who paid him that allegiance could not with any sort of propriety be considered as traitors for so doing. The eleventh of Henry VII, though subsequent to these transactions, is full in point. For let it be remembered, that though the enacting part of this excellent law can respect only future cases, the preamble is declaratory of the common law, and consequently will enable us to judge of the loyalty of past transactions. It recites to this effect: "That the subjects of England are bound by the duty of their allegiance to serve their prince and sovereign lord for the time being, in defence of him and his realm against every rebellious power that might be raised against him; and that whatsoever may happen in the fortune of war against the mind and will of the prince, as in this land some time past it has been seen, it is not reasonable, but against all law, reason and good conscience, that such subjects should suffer for doing their true duty and service of allegiance." It then enacteth "that no person attending upon the king for the time being in his wars shall, for such service, be convict or attaint of treason or other offence by act of Parliament, or otherwise by any process of law.'" "Here," continues Foster, "is a full and clear parliamentary declaration that by the ancient law and Constitution of England, founded on principles of reason, equity and good conscience, the allegiance of the subject is to the king for the time being and to him alone. This putteth the duty of the subject upon a rational and safe bottom. He knoweth that protection and allegiance are reciprocal duties. He hopeth for protection from the Crown, and he payeth his allegiance to it in the person of him whom he seeth in full and peaceable possession. He entereth not into the question of title; he hath neither leisure nor abilities, nor is he at leisure to enter into that question; but he seeth the fountain from which the blessings of government, liberty, peace and plenty flow, and there he payeth his allegiance, and this excellent law secureth him against all after reckonings on that account."

"Jenkins," says D'Israeli, "a mighty athlete in the vast arena of the first English revolution, was one of our greatest lawyers; whose moral intrepidity exceeded even his profound erudition in the laws of our constitution; he takes no station in the page of our historians; yet he is a statue which should be placed in a niche." This great man, with all the other judges of England, assembled together in the Exchequer Chamber, in those uncertain and tempestuous times, unanimously resolved, (as will be seen in his "Centuries," as he calls his reports) verbatim as follows:

"A king who is a usurper, grants wardships, licenses of alienation, escheats; these grants are good, and shall be in force against the rightful king; so of pardons, and other grants which do not concern the ancient patrimony of the lawful king, nor the leagues between him and foreign princes. Judicial acts done in the time of the usurper, bind the rightful king, and all who submitted to this judicature. The crown was tossed between the two houses of York and Lancaster for many years, and yet the acts done of royalty and government in the reign of the several competitors, were confirmed by the respective parliaments. These resolutions were made because the common people cannot judge of the title to the crown, and also to avoid anarchy and confusion."

"By all the Judges of England.
Salus populi suprema lex est."

If such be the doctrine of a monarchy, what ought to be that of a republic, especially where before the war, allegiance was, to say the least, divided between the two powers competing for ascendancy? Judge Chase could multiply instances such as have been cited, only he is a "popular" judge.

ROCKBRIDGE ALUM SPRINGS.

OPEN JUNE 1.

This favorite and delightful watering-place, having undergone thorough renovation, is prepared to receive visitors. The owners have made every effort in the outfit and equipment to render the place more than ever attractive to those in quest of recreation, while to the invalid its medicinal waters hold out new hopes of health. It may be confidently claimed for them that they have in a great many cases relieved, and in many more cases cured, the following diseases: Scrofula, and many chronic CUTANEOUS diseases; CHRONIC THROAT, BRONCHITIS, DYSPEPSIA, CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, DROPSY, AFFECTIONS OF KIDNEY and BLADDER, and PILES; and, in connection with the Hot Baths, CHRONIC RHEUMATISM.
As an appetizer, a tonic, and general restorative to an enfeebled constitution, it is perhaps unrivalled amongst mineral waters. The proprietors have engaged for the approaching season

THE CITY.—We should like to see a census of Raleigh taken. It is very evident to the most superficial observer that its population is steadily increasing, and is now much larger than it was prior to the war.—The suburbs are being greatly extended, and many of the tenements on the outskirts of the City, though small, are neat and pleasant cottages.

A PERFECT dearth of items of interest renders our local column necessarily barren this morning.

STATE NEWS.

——Col Jno. W. Hinsdale, of Fayetteville, has accepted an invitation to deliver an address in that place on the approaching 4th of July. The following is his letter of acceptance:

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.,
June 20, 1867.

MY DEAR SIRS:—Your polite note of the 17th inst. has been received. I will say to you frankly, that I have hesitated somewhat in accepting your invitation to deliver an address on the approaching anniversary of American Independence; for the reason, that in view of the present condition of our land, I have been in doubt as to what kind of an oration would be expected of me on this occasion. You will readily appreciate my position when I tell you, that one who has striven for four years in a cause which he loved dearer than life itself, cannot glory in the defeat of that cause, nor regard with indifference the many sad changes which have attended its overthrow. I could not sacrifice my own self-respect so far as to participate in such a proceeding. But I am led to think that such a sacrifice will not be at all necessary. The questions which have agitated this country have been, as I believe, forever decided by the sword. I am, therefore, willing to forget the past, with its many bitter associations, and for the future, to do all that lies within my power to effect a thorough and perfect reconciliation of our people. I would see them once more united and prosperous; and to this end I will cooperate with all good men, who have the welfare of our common country at heart.

As a Southern man I deplore the sad afflictions which press so heavily upon my section, but as a NATIONAL man, loyal to the United States government, I am still as ever proud of the glorious deeds of our revolutionary fathers, and of the lofty station among the nations of the earth, to which my country has attained.

I have candidly avowed to you my sentiments. If such an address as I can deliver, without doing violence to any of them, will be satisfactory to you, I shall take pleasure in accepting your flattering invitation.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JNO. W. HINSDALE.

[To Committee.]

——At the regular annual meeting of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, held in Newbern, on Thursday, the following gentleman were elected Directors for the ensuing year, on the part of the individual stockholders, viz: Jno. D. Whitford, Esq., Dr. J. B. Hughes, and C. C. Clark Esq., of Craven, and Jno. C. Washington Esq., of Lenoir. There was no change from last year in the Directors on the part of the State, except that Jno. L. Morehead, Esq., was this year placed on the Board. Geo. W. Dill, Esq., was State Proxy.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, Col. Jno. D. Whitford was re-elected President for the year,—a merited compliment to his able and efficient management of the Road. The net earnings for the year past amounted to only $7,020.39; but extraordinary disbursements were required to repair the damaged condition of the road, its bridges, viaducts, &c. But for these, there would have been a handsome showing for the year's operations.

——We learn from the Goldsboro News that, at a special term of the Superior Court for Lenoir, held in Kinston last week, Judge Warren presiding, two men, Thomas and James Brinkley, were tried and convicted of the crime of murder, and sentenced to be hung on the 11th. July next. Since his conviction, Thomas Brinkley has made a full confession of his guilt, and acquits James Brinkley of any participation in the crime.

A petition is on foot asking for Executive interference in behalf of James Brinkley. Attorneys W. G. Morrisey, Rasberry and Jno. N. Washington appeared for prisoners—Solicitor Faircloth and John F. Wooten, Esq., for the State.

——The Supreme Council of the Friends of Temperance was in session in Petersburg, last week. Among the new officers elected are the following gentlemen from this State, viz: Associate President, Gen. R. B. Vance. Secretary, Rev. Jos. N. Andews; Conductor, Capt. W. H. Young; Sentinel, Maj. Exum Lewis.

——The Fayetteville News gives a distressing account of the freshet in that section. It says:

"The Railroad Bridge and the County Bridge over Little River are gone; the superstructure or span of the Railroad Bridge remains, but the underworks have been washed away. We understand that the work can be repaired in a reasonable time. The bridge at Rockfish Factory has also been swept away."

—— The Wilmington Dispatch says eminent physicians are of opinion that the recent rains have so saturated the ground, that typhoid, choleraic and malarial diseases generally may be apprehended. So far, the city is healthful.

—— The R. W. Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., for the State of North Carolina, will hold their annual communication in the Lodge Room of Neuse Lodge, in Goldsboro', on the 16th. day of July.

—— The steeple of the new Baptist Church in Wilmington was struck by lightning on Thursday last. But little damage was done.

——The Athletic Base-Ball club of Petersburg and the club in Halifax will play a match-game, in the latter place, on the 4th. of July.

—— There are two colored churches in successful operation in Goldsboro',—the Methodist, under the pastoral care of Rev. Mr. Jordan, colored, and the Baptist, under the pastoral care of Rev. Charles Nelson, white.

—— A little boy, son of the Rev. J. T. Cuthrell, of Salisbury, fell into a well in that place, on Thursday evening, and was killed.

THE REVOLUTION.

The New York Times discovers that the Reconstruction bill "violates every cardinal principle of our government, and is at variance with the clearest letter of the Constitution;" but that, nevertheless, it is a very good law, and is working very good results. The natural inference would be that the cardinal principles of our government are all wrong and that the Constitution is a stupidity; but the Times does not mean any such thing; it means that in a revolution all law ceases to be of any avail, and force takes the place of right. We have then been in a revolution, and are still in one. Who have been the revolutionists? Revolution is an upsetting of a former government and a changing of rulers. The Constitution was the government of the United States; if it is so no longer, as the Times states, then the Republican is the revolutionary party. There is to our view nothing inconsistent in the Reconstruction bill with the principles of the Republican party; on the contrary, it is a necessary result of them; nor would a similar bill, passed in time of profound peace and without any provocation, applied to the State of New York, be indefensible upon those principles. Either the Constitution is the supreme law—in which case, according to the Times, all of the Republicans who voted for the Reconstruction bill are perjured traitors—or there is some other law which has power to justify false swearing and disobedience.

It was just precisely because the Republican party held that the Constitution was not the supreme law that the Southern States seceded, and it was precisely upon this question whether that party in power must not be impotent for mischief unless aided by secession that the Northern and the Southern Democracy split. We insisted that they should exhaust peaceful opposition, and they answered that the great mass of men in the free States would, if a war came, fight them just as hard if they were right as if they were wrong.

Now, events cannot be changed; constitutional liberty may be a dream, but the fault does not lie with the Constitution of the United States; it lies with men who did not respect it, would not obey it; who did not admit it to be their government, and who have since called themselves par excellence "loyal."—N. Y. World.

A great many "colonists" were prevented from registering in Jefferson Ward on yesterday, through the agency of some active citizens, who deserve the public gratitude for thus devoting their time and toil. They had come in squads of various numbers, as far as from Louisa county.—Richmond Enquirer, 29th.

General Grant is said to have replied to General Sheridan, but not through the prints. He did not know of Sheridan's telegram to himself, until he saw it in the Washington Chronicle,—whereat he is said to have been much offended.

HELL GATE.—The New York Herald is urgent—nay, clamorous—in its appeals to Congress to open "Hell gate." Really, we think the Herald is most exorbitant in its demands. Congress has done its best, and if the gate is not wide open the fault is certainly not with it.—Richmond Dispatch.

IMPEACHMENT.—It is claimed that there is sufficient evidence now in possession of the committee to warrant the impeachment of the President should Congress decide it expedient.—Washington Chronicle.

Registration has closed in Leesburg, Virginia. The total number registered was 588—380 whites and 208 blacks. In Winchester the total number registered up to Wednesday last was 1, 284—945 whites and 339 blacks.

SAVANNAH, June 29.

Hon. H. S. Fitch, U. S. District Attorney, in answer to a letter addressed to him, has expressed the opinion that a pardon, granted by the President, blots out all disfranchisement and re-instates the individual in all his previous rights, which he cannot be deprived of by any subsequent legislation. He says the elective franchise is one of the rights restored by pardon and amnesty. If a person, thus pardoned, be refused registration, let him enter a protest for the consideration of the Commanding General. The Attorney closes thus:

"Next to a usurpation of power, there is no higher grade in political crime than a limited abandonment of rights."

MEXICAN NEWS.

NEW ORLEANS, June 30.

An Austrian steam sloop of war arrived in the southern pass yesterday morning and landed telegraphic dispatches for the Austrian government. Her national ensign is draped in deep mourning for this, and the reticence of her officers is significant. They, however, report that the city of Mexico was captured on the 20th. inst. by the Liberals. The particulars had not reached Vera Cruz up to the time of sailing.

The Mexican Schooner Atlas, also arrived in the mouth of the Mississippi yesterday morning, having on board twenty-four exiled Imperialist Mexicans, who have been preemptorily banished. Among them are several military officers. They report that Santa Anna was transferred to the American steamer Virginia, at Vera Cruz, and conveyed to Sisal. On arriving the Mexican gunboat demanded the person of Santa Anna, which was refused, when the Mexicans threatened to fire upon the Virginia. The Captain told them that they could take him by force as he was not armed. They then spread the American ensign on the gangway. The Mexicans trod on the flag and seized Santa Anna, thrust him into their boat, took him to Campeachy and confined him as a prisoner of war.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

WASHINGTON, June 30.

Revenue receipts yesterday $1,008,000. Total for the fiscal year ending to-day $205,853,000.—National Bank circulation $298,000,000. Securities for notes and deposits held $379,000,000.

The Judiciary committee had a brief session yesterday, but did nothing.

It is hoped here that the Austria vessel at New Orleans is draped in mourning on account of the death of the Archduchess, Alice, who died recently.

The evidence of Weichman was continued today. He made many corrections regarding dates given before the commission, but nothing new was developed.

The Judiciary committee have summoned ex-Attorney General Speed.

Ex-Mexican Minister Campbell is at the White House to-night.

The Austrian Minister is at the Springs. It is impossible to get the text of his dispatches. It seems to be doubted that Maximilian was shot on the 19th.

Considerable doubt is felt regarding a quorum on Wednesday. The Democrats will not attend until the organization. Some conservative Republicans deprecate the July meeting. About twenty members have arrived.

GRAND CELEBRATION IN ROME.

ROME, June 30.

The religious ceremonies at Rome, in celebrating the 1800th. anniversary of St. Peter's Martyrdom, and the canonization of the martyrs in Japan, was one of the most gorgeous that has been witnessed in the world since the days of King Solomon.

The observances commenced with a general illumination of the city. St. Peter's glowed like a great church on fire. At 7 A. M. a grand procession of Prelates, Priests, Monks and soldiers marched from the batteau to St. Peter's. The Pope was carried on his throne. St. Peter's was magnificently decorated with cloths of gold and silver tapestries and paintings and 200,000 yards of crimson silk. The building was lighted with many millions of wax candles.

SPECIAL NOTICES

KNOW THY DESTINY.

MADAME E. F. THORNTON, the great English Astrologist, Clairvoyant and Psychometrician, who has astonished the scientific classes of the Old World, has now located herself at Hudson, N. Y. Madame Thornton possesses such wonderful powers of second sight, as to enable her to impart knowledge of the greatest importance to the single or married of either sex. While in a state of trance, she delineates the very features of the person you are to marry, and by the aid of an instrument of intense power, known as the Psychomotrope, guarantees to produce a life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant, together with date of marriage, position in life, leading traits of character, &c. This is no humbug, as thousands of testimonials can assert. She will send when desired a certified certificate, or written guarantee, that the picture is what it purports to be. By enclosing a small lock of hair and stating place of birth, age, disposition and complexion, and enclosing fifty cents and stamped envelope addressed to yourself, you will receive the picture and desired information by return mail. WHEN I MEAN TO MARRY.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

When do I mean to marry? Well,
'Tis idle to dispute with fate;
But if you choose to hear me tell,
Pray listen while I fix the date.

When daughter's haste, with eager fret,
A mother's daily toil to share;
Can make the puddings which they eat,
And mend the stockings which they wear;

When maidens look upon a man
As in himself what they would marry,
And not as army soldiers scan
A sutler or a commissary;

When gentle ladies, who have got
The offer of a lover's hand,
Consent to share his earthly lot,
And do not mean his lot of land;

When young mechanics are allowed,
To find and wed the farmer girls
Who don't expect to be endowed,
With rubies, diamonds and pearls;

When wives, in short, shall freely give
Their hearts and hands to aid their spouses
And live, as they were wont to live, on
Within their sires' one story houses:

Then, madam—if I'm not too old—
Rejoiced to quit this lonely life—
I'll brush my beaver; cease to scold;
And look about me for a wife!

DROVERS vs. FOPS.—Dinner was spread in the cabin of that peerless steamer, the New World, and a splendid company were assembled about the table. Among the passengers thus prepared for gastronomic duty was a little creature of the genius, Fop, decked daintily as an early butterfly, with kids of irreproachable whiteness, 'miraculous' neck tie and spider like quizzing glass on his nose. The delicate animal turned his head affectedly aside with—

"Waitah!"

"Sah!"

"Bring me a pwopellah of a fwemale woostah!"

"Yis sah!"

"And, Waitah, tell the steward to wub my plate with a wegetable called onion, which will give a delicious flavaw to my dinnah."

While the refined exquisite was giving his order, a jolly western drover had listened with open mouth and protruding eyes.—When the diminutive creature paused, he brought his fist down upon the table with a force that made every dish bounce and then thundered out—

"Here! you gaul darned ace-of-spades!"

"Yis, sah."

"Bring me a thundering big plate of skunk's gizzards!"

"Sah!"

"And an old ink pot; tuck a horse blanket under my chin, and rub me down with brickbats while I feed!"

The poor dandy showed a pair of straight tails instanter, and the whole table joined in a "tremenjus roar."

3. All citizens are eligible to follow any licensed calling, employment or avocation, subject to such impartial regulations as may be prescribed by municipal or other competent authority, not inconsistent with common rights and the Constitution and laws of the United States. 7. All contracts hereafter made for the manufacture, sale or transportation, storage or insurance of intoxicating liquors shall within this military district be deemed and treated as against public policy, and no civil action, suit or proceedings for the enforcement of any such contract shall be entertained in any court.

Congressional Reconstruction Acts.

For the information of our readers we republish as follows the late reconstruction act of Congress, known as the Sherman-Shellabarger bill. We shall add to it the Howard Amendment, Test Oath and the Supplementary act, all of which will be kept standing until the necessary information they contain shall be generally and fully understood.

THE RECONSTRUCTION ACT.

[Passed over the President's Veto, March 2d, 1867.]

WHEREAS, no legal State governments or adequate protection for life or property now exists in the rebel States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas, and Arkansas; and whereas it is necessary that peace and good order should be enforced in said States until loyal and Republican State Governments can be legally established: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That said rebel States shall be divided into military districts and made subject to the military authority of the United States, as hereinafter prescribed, and for that purpose Virginia shall constitute the first district; North Carolina and South Carolina the second district; Georgia, Alabama and Florida the third district; Mississippi and Arkansas the fourth district; and Louisiana and Texas the fifth district.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the President to assign to the command of each of said districts an officer of the army, not below the rank of Brigadier general, and to detail a sufficient military force to enable such officer to perform his duties and enforce his authority within the district to which he is assigned.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of each officer assigned as aforesaid to protect all persons in their rights of person and property, to suppress insurrection, disorder and violence, and to punish, or cause to be punished, all disturbers of the public peace and criminals, and to this end he may allow local civil tribunals to take jurisdiction of and to try offenders, or, when in his judgment it may be necessary for the trial of offenders, he shall have power to organize military commissions or tribunals for that purpose, and all interference, under color of State authority, with the exercise of military authority under this act shall be null and void.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That all persons put under military arrest by virtue of this act shall be tried without unnecessary delay, and no cruel or unusual punishment shall be inflicted; and no sentence of any military commission or tribunal hereby authorized, affecting the life or liberty of any person, shall be executed until it is approved by the officer in command of the district, and the laws and regulations for the government of the army shall not be affected by this act, except in so far as they conflict with its provisions. Provided, That no sentence of death, under the provisions of this act, shall be carried into effect without the approval of the President.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That when the people of any one of said rebel States shall have formed a constitution of government in conformity with the Constitution of the United States in all respects, framed by a convention of delegates elected by the male citizens of said State, twenty one years old and upwards, of whatever race, color or previous condition, who have been resident in said State for one year previous to the day of such election, except such as may be disfranchised for participation in the rebellion, or for felony at common law; and when such constitution shall provide that the elective franchise shall be enjoyed by all such persons as have the qualifications herein stated for electors of delegates; and when such constitution shall be ratified by a majority of the persons voting on the question of ratification, who are qualified as electors for delegates; and when such Constitution shall be ratified by a majority of the persons voting on the question of ratification, who are qualified as electors for delegates; and when such constitution shall have been submitted to Congress for examination and approval, and Congress shall have approved the same; and when the said State, by a vote of its legislature, elected under said constitution, shall have adopted the amendment to the constitution of the United States, proposed by the Thirty-ninth Congress, and known as article fourteen; and when said article shall have become a part of the constitution of the United States, said State shall be declared entitled to representation in Congress, and Senators and Representatives shall be admitted therefrom, on their taking the oath prescribed by law; and then and thereafter the preceding sections of this act shall be inoperative in said State. Provided, That no person excluded from the privilege of holding office by said amendment to the constitution of the United States shall be eligible to election as a member of the convention to frame a constitution for any of said rebel States, nor shall any such person vote for members of such convention.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That until the people of said rebel States shall be by law admitted to representation in the Congress of the United States, any civil government which may exist therein shall be deemed provisional only, and in all respects subject to the paramount authority of the United States at any time to abolish, modify, control or supersede the same; and in all elections to any office under such provisional governments all persons shall be entitled to vote, and none others, who are entitled to vote under the provisions of the fifth section of this act; and no person shall be eligible to any office under such provisional governments who would be disqualified from holding office under the provisions of the third article of said constitutional amendment.

SCHUYLER COLFAX
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
LAFAYETTE S. FOSTER,

Proposed Constitutional Amendment.

ARTICLE XIV.

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Sec. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, representatives in Congress, executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State being twenty-one years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Sec. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice-President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

Sec. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims, shall be held illegal and void.

Sec. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.

The following is the oath of office referred to in the 5th section of the bill, and also in the 6th of the Supplementary Bill:

An Act to Prescribe an Oath of Office and for Other Purposes.

Be it enacted, That hereafter any person elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit under the government of the United States, either in the civil, military or naval department of the public service, except the President of the United States, shall before entering upon the duties of such office, and before being entitled to any of the salary or other emolument thereof, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I, A B, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the U. S. since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have voluntarily given no aid, countenance, counsel or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have never sought nor accepted, nor attempted to exercise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority, or pretended authority, in hostility to the United States; that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto; and I do further swear (or affirm) that to the best of my knowlege and ability, I will support and defend the constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God," which oath, so taken and signed shall be preserved among the files of the Court, Houses of Congress, or the department to which said officer may appertain. And any person who may falsely take said oath shall be guilty of perjury, and on conviction, in addition to the penalties now prescribed for that offence, shall be deprived of his office, and rendered incapable, forever after, of holding any office or place under the United States.

Approved July 2, 1862.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE STEVENS-SHERMAN-SHELLABARGER BILL.

AN ACT supplemental to an act entitled an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 2, 1867, and to facilitate restoration.

Be it enacted, &c., That before the first day of September, 1867, the commanding general in each district defined by the act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, approved March 2 1867, shall cause a registration to be made of the male citizens of the United States, twenty-one years of age, and upwards, resident in each county or parish in the State or States included in his district, which registration will include only those persons who are qualified to vote for delegates by the act aforesaid, and who shall have taken and subscribed the following oath or affirmation:

"I, ——, do solemnly swear, or affirm, in the presence of Almighty God, that I am a citizen of the State of ——; that I have resided in said State for —— months next preceding this day, and now reside in the county of ——, or the parish of ——, in said State, as the case may be; that I am 21 years old; that I have not been disfranchised for participation in any rebellion or civil war against the United States, nor for felony committed against the laws of any State or of the United States; that I have never been a member of any State Legislature, or held any executive or judicial office in any State, and afterwards engaged in insurrection and rebellion against the United States, and given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; that I have never taken an oath as a member of Congress of the United States, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, and afterwards engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof; that I will faithfully support the Constitution and obey the laws of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, encourage others so to do. So help me God."

which oath or affirmation may be administered by any registering officer.

Sec. 2. That after the completion of the registration hereby provided for in any State at such time and place therein as the commanding general shall appoint and direct, of which at least thirty day's public notice shall be given, an election shall be held of delegates to a convention for the purpose of establishing a constitution and civil government for such State loyal to the Union; said convention in each State, except Virginia, to consist of the same number of members as the most numerous branch of the State Legislature of such State in the year 1860, to be apportioned among the several districts, counties, or parishes of such State by the commanding general, giving to each representation in the ratio of voters registered as aforesaid as nearly as may be. The convention in Virginia shall consist of the same number of members as represented the territory now constituting Virginia in the most numerous branch of the Legislature of said State in the year 1860, to be apportioned as aforesaid.

Sec. 3. That at such election the registered voters of each State shall vote for or against a convention to form a constitution thereof under this act. Those voting in favor of such a convention shall have written or printed on the ballots by which they vote for delegates, as aforesaid, the words "for a convention;" and those voting against such a convention shall have written or printed on such ballots the words "against a convention." The persons appointed to superintend said election, and to make return of the votes given thereat, as herein provided, shall count and make return of the votes given for and against a convention; and the commanding general, to whom the same shall have been returned, shall ascertain and declare the total vote in each State for and against a convention. If a majority of the votes given on that question shall be for a convention, then a convention shall be held, as hereinafter provided; but if a majority of said votes shall be against a convention, then no convention shall be held under this act: Provided, That such convention shall not be held unless a majority of all such registered voters shall have voted on the question of holding such convention.

Sec. 4. That the commanding general of each district shall appoint such loyal officers or persons as may be necessary, not exceeding three in each election district, in any State, to make and complete the registration, superintend the election, and make return to him of the votes, lists of voters and of the persons elected as delegates by a plurality of the votes cast at said election; and upon receiving said returns he shall open the same, ascertain the persons elected as delegates according to the returns of the officers who conducted said election, and make proclamation thereof; and if a majority of the votes given on that question shall be for a convention, the commanding general within sixty days from the date of election, shall notify the delegates to assemble in convention at a time and place to be mentioned in the notification, and said convention, when organized, shall proceed to frame a Constitution and civil government according to the provisions of this act, and the act to which it is supplementary; and when the same shall have been so framed, said Constitution shall be submitted by the convention for ratification to the persons registered under the provisions of this act, at an election to be conducted by the officers, or persons appointed by the commanding general as herein-before provided, and to be held after the expiration of thirty days from the date of notice thereof to be given by said convention, and the returns thereof shall be made to the commanding general of the district.

Sec. 5 That if, according to said returns, the constitution shall be ratified by a majority of the votes of the registered electors qualified as herein specified, cast at said election, at least one-half of all the registered voters voting upon the question of such ratification, the president of the convention shall transmit a copy of the same, duly certified, to the President of the United States, who shall forthwith transmit the same to Congress, if then in session, and if not in session, then immediately upon the next assembling; and if it shall moreover appear to Congress that the election was one at which all the registered and qualified electors in the State had an opportunity to vote freely and without restraint, fear or the influence of fraud, and if Congress shall be satisfied that such constitution meets the approval of a majority of the qualified electors in the State, and if the said constitution shall be declared by Congress to be in conformity with the provisions of the act to which this is supplementary, and the other provisions of said act shall have been complied with, and the said constitution shall be approved by Congress, the State shall be declared entitled to representation, and Senators and Representatives shall be admitted therefrom as herein provided.

Sec. 6. That all elections in the States mentioned in the said "Act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States," shall, during the operation of said act, be by ballot; and all officers making the said registration of voters and conducting said elections shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, subscribe an oath faithfully to perform the duties of their said office, and the oath prescribed by the act approved July 2, 1862, entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office:" Provided, That if any person shall knowingly and falsely take and subscribe any oath in this act prescribed, such person so offending, and being thereof duly convicted, shall be subject to the pains, penalties and disabilities which by law are provided for the punishment of the crime of wilful and corrupt perjury.

Sec. 7. That all expenses incurred by the several commanding generals, or by virtue of any orders issued or appointments made by them under or by virtue of this act, shall be paid out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 8. That the convention for each State shall prescribe the fees, salary, and compensation to be paid to all delegates and other officers, and agents herein authorized or necessary to carry into effect the purposes of this act, not herein otherwise provided for, and shall provide for the levy and collection of such taxes on the property in such State as may be necessary to pay the same.

Sec. 9. That the word "article" in the sixth section of the act to which this is supplementary shall be construed to mean "section."
